Market Recap

The U.S. equity market rallied in the fourth quarter of 2023 as the Federal Reserve guided toward cuts in the coming year and treasury yields recorded a significant reversal. Following a modest loss in the third quarter that continued into October, U.S. equities saw nine consecutive weeks of positive returns. Performance was more broad-based during the quarter as earnings are expected to improve for 2024. During the quarter, the best performing benchmark sectors were Real Estate, Information Technology, and Financials. The worst performing sectors for the benchmark were Energy, Consumer Staples, and Health Care.

Portfolio Review

The Touchstone Dividend Select ETF (NAV) outperformed its benchmark, the Russell 1000 Value Index, for the quarter ended December 31, 2023.

The Fund's outperformance was primarily driven by stock selection while its sector positioning also contributed. The dividend orientation of the strategy was a modest negative factor for the quarter as dividend paying stocks underperformed non-dividend paying stocks.

Selection within Information Technology, Financials, and Real Estate were the primary drivers of positive security selection during the quarter. Selection within Consumer Discretionary and Communication Services were detractors.

An overweight to Information Technology and underweight to Energy were both positive contributors to sector allocation.

The largest individual contributors to relative performance were overweight positions in Broadcom Inc. (Information Technology sector), Microsoft Corp. (Information Technology sector), KLA

Corp. (Information Technology sector), Qualcomm Inc. (Information Technology sector), and American Tower Corp. (Real Estate sector).

Broadcom returned 35% in the 4th quarter, resulting in a total return of 104% for 2023 and its best calendar year return on record. The stock moved higher during the quarter after posting better than expected fiscal fourth quarter results and favorable guidance. Specifically, investors cheered the higher artificial intelligence driven chip sales forecasts and better than expected guidance for the integration of VMware.

Qualcomm outperformed following better than expected fiscal fourth quarter results and an increase in guidance. A recovery in smartphone sales in China drove the beat for the period and led to its upbeat forecast. In addition to stellar results, the stock also moved higher during the quarter following reports that Apple is experiencing delays in its attempt to replace Qualcomm chips in the iPhone.

American Tower Corp returned 34% during the quarter after the company reported better than expected third quarter results and increased guidance. Alongside its strong earnings, the stock benefitted from a broad rally in REIT valuations as interest rates declined throughout the quarter.

The largest detractors from performance were overweight exposures to Valero Energy Corp. (Energy sector), Oracle Corp. (Information Technology sector), Constellation Brands (Consumer Staples sector), Fox Corp. (Communication Services sector), and Air Products and Chemicals Inc. (Materials sector).

Valero was the largest detractor during the quarter as the sector underperformed alongside a 21% decline in oil prices.

Oracle was a bottom performer during the period after the stock dropped 12% following a miss in fiscal second quarter earnings driven by a shortfall in revenue. Slowing cloud growth was the primary concern for investors as the company continues to make progress on its cloud transition. Despite the miss during the quarter, Oracle maintained its full-year cloud guidance, indicating stronger growth for the remainder of its fiscal year.

Outlook and Conclusion

Looking ahead, we continue to question whether a hard landing is still to come. Soft landings are typically preceded by the easing of lending standards while the tightening of lending standards precedes hard landings. We continue to believe bank-lending standards stay tight in the coming quarters. As a result, we see additional downside risk to growth and believe the path for a soft landing remains narrow mainly due to the lag effects of higher interest rates.

A Word About Risk

The Fund invests in equities which are subject to market volatility and loss. The Fund invests in stocks of large-cap companies which may be unable to respond quickly to new competitive challenges. The Fund invests in dividend-paying companies. There is no guarantee that the companies in which the Fund invests will declare dividends in the future or that dividends, if declared, will remain at current levels or increase over time. Securities that pay dividends may be sensitive to changes in interest rates, and as interest rates rise or fall, the prices of such securities may fall.

Touchstone exchange-traded funds (ETFs) are actively managed and do not seek to replicate a specific index. ETFs are bought and sold through an exchange at the then current market price, not net asset value (NAV), and are not individually redeemed from the fund. Shares may trade at a premium or discount to their NAV when traded on an exchange. Brokerage commissions will reduce returns. There can be no guarantee that an active market for ETFs will develop or be maintained, or that the ETF's listing will continue or remain unchanged.

The Adviser engages a sub-adviser to make investment decisions for the Fund's portfolio; it may be unable to identify and retain a sub-adviser who achieves superior investment returns relative to other similar sub-advisers. Events in the U.S. and global financial markets, including actions taken to stimulate or stabilize economic growth may at times result in unusually high market volatility, which could negatively impact Fund performance and cause it to experience illiquidity, shareholder redemptions, or other potentially adverse effects. Financial institutions could suffer losses if interest rates rise or economic conditions deteriorate. The Fund's service providers are susceptible to cyber security risks that could result in losses to a Fund and its shareholders. Cyber security incidents could affect issuers in which a Fund invests, thereby causing the Fund's investments to lose value. The Fund invests in value stocks which may not appreciate in value as anticipated or may experience a decline in value. Current and future portfolio holdings are subject to change.
